DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

3. Claims 17-26 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Kezuka et al (4614632) in view of Wenning et al (5792487).

Kezuka teaches the claimed apparatus having a first and second intersecting interdigital rollers (54a, 54b), a press roll [controller or disc] (53) for contacting the film to the first roller, Kezuka also teaches a set of interengaging rollers (51a, 51b).

Kezuka fails to ^{teach}~~claim~~ a bar, presser, a plurality of controllers and progressive roll formers and lateral adjustable.

Wenning teaches the claimed apparatus of producing corrugated materials via intersecting interdigital rollers (18,28). The film is sent through a plurality of controllers

Art Unit: 1722

(14a, 14b, 14c) for contacting to the rollers. One of ordinary skill in the art would recognize that the controllers also act as progressive roll formers.

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to modify Kezuka with rollers as taught by Wenning because it allows for the creation of slack in the film and the formation of corrugation along the width of the film.

In regards to claim 19, the roller taught by Kezuka and Wenning is equivalent to a bar running across the width of the film. One of ordinary skill in the art would recognize that a roller and bar would function similarly, only a roll is not placed the support the roller. The roller is an improvement over to bar to prevent friction from developing as the film runs along towards the interdigital rollers for stretching.

In regards to claim 26, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to make the controller laterally adjustable. In re Stevens, 101 USPQ 284. It is merely a choice of design to shift in the controllers location in Kezuka laterally.

Conclusion
